Amazing Facts About the Hippopotamus (Hippo)

The name Hippopotamus comes from the Ancient Greek 'river horse'. An adult Hippo needs to resurface every 3 – 5 mins to breathe. The process of surfacing and breathing is automatic, and even a hippo sleeping underwater will rise and breathe without waking. Hippo calves weigh approximately 45kg at birth and can suckle on land or underwater by closing their ears and nostrils. Soon after birth, mother and young join schools that provide some protection against crocodiles, lions, and hyenas. Despite its stocky shape and short legs, it can easily outrun most humans. Hippos have been clocked at 30 km/h or 19 miles/h over short distances. Hippos will travel on land for up to 10km to feed. They spend four to five hours grazing and can consume 68 kg of grass each night. Their closest living relatives are cetaceans (whales, porpoises, etc.) from which they diverged about 55 million years ago. The IUCN classified the Hippo as having vulnerable status in 2008.
