

A new way to share links: Rebrandly, announces launch at the WebSummit offering 5000 domains for free!

Dublin, Ireland: An innovative online service will be officially launched in all major markets during Web Summit 2015. Rebrandly provides users the ability to associate their brand to the links they share making webpresence memorable, engaging and consistent.

Most destination links are long alphanumeric combinations, impossible to remember and not descriptive. Link shorteners solve part of the problem but remain ugly, untrustworthy, impronunciable and anonymous. Branded links are the solution.

Following links point to the same destination page: Long link: websummit.net/?utm_source=Ci+Events+Newsletter&utm_ca... Short link: bit.ly/10HznJY Branded link: Davide.link/WebSummit Rebrandly is the easiest way to create and manage branded links. Branding links with Rebrandly increases brand awareness of companies and individuals by showcasing and implementing brand messaging across the web.

We know that personal and professional branding is more popular now than ever. Whether you're a company CEO, a freelancer, an actor or a journalist you'll benefit by using Rebrandly's branded links to increase awareness for your brand or simply to look cool in front of your friends.

Rebrandly is very easy to use, even if you're not a techie: sign up for free, choose a domain which represents your brand, download the browser extension and start creating and sharing branded links from your preferred browser with a single click! Rebrandly will help immediately and automatically improve your brand visibility, increase link trust and optimize SEO ranking.

Join the power of the branded links, start taking control of all your links and create awareness around your personal and your company brand!

"Everyone should sign with his name or company brand the links he shares. I cannot see a future without branded links". Says Davide De Guz, founder of Rebrandly
