RECENT STUDIES SUPPORT PROBIOTICS FOR KIDS

A new report by the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) in the journal Pediatrics found that children who took probiotics had less respiratory infections and diarrhea than those who took a placebo.

Some studies also show some promise with probiotic use to treat colic, reflux, irritable bowel syndrome, constipation, allergies, asthma, eczema, colitis and Crohn's disease.*

2 STAGE ADVANCED DELIVERY SUPPORTS CHILDRENS IMMUNE SYSTEM AND DIGESTIVE HEALTH

TriActive Biotics Junior utilizes Microencapsulation technology, a process where the probiotic is covered with a natural protective coating. This enables safe delivery to the optimal location, the small intestine.

This technology was shown in studies to deliver "friendly" live cultures to the target location 5 times greater than brands that aren't microencapsulated.

TriActive Biotics Jr also contains a prebiotic that creates important metabolites that balance the pH of the stomach, wards off the growth of unfriendly bacteria, and creates a path of food for the "friendly" probiotic to multiply.

The microencapsulation also gives the product a longer active life span and avoids the necessity of refrigeration.

Stage 1: Prebiotic Delivery

TriActive Biotics Jr's prebiotic goes to work in the stomach where it balances the pH and creates important metabolites. This discourages the growth of unfriendly bacteria, and establishes ideal conditions for the microencapsulated probiotic to multiply.

Stage 2: Probiotic Delivery

Microencapsulation allows the probiotic to travel past the stomach into the intestine where the prebiotic has established a pathway for it to flourish. Once past the stomach, the microencapsulation dissolves and the probiotic is released in the intestine giving your child the maximum rate of probiotic benefit.
