

A client contacted us on the first week of March 2019.

One of their own clients had been diagnosed with a brain aneurysm and was rushed to a hospital in FLA from one of the Caribbean Islands.

His wife had to come from Romania to be with him.

What was supposed to be a one day project, turned to be a full week for our medical interpreter, who shifted her schedule to accompany the wife as much as possible during this difficult time.

Even in the toughest of situations, our interpreters always come through.

“

We had a similar case last year in Orlando, where a gentleman died at an airport. His husband flew in from France, and what was supposed to be a one-day interpreting project turned into a week, as our interpreter stayed with him every day from Saturday to Friday, then saw him off as he flew back to his country.
